Break The Silence

! PROBLEM !

Our education system has always been the one where crucial topics like sex education, mental health, and personal growth are deemed taboo and hidden behind a blanket of shame. This is the reality has always left us vulnerable as this stifling silence restricts crucial themes from entering formal education systems. Schools and colleges, hesitant to break the taboo, refrain from addressing these sensitive topics.

Secondly, the silence extends beyond classrooms, seeping into homes. Parents, hesitant to break the taboo, shy away from open conversations, leaving children to cobble together understanding from whispers, rumors, and potentially harmful sources. The silence stings like a scorpion.

Women are vulnerable to rape, kids are clueless about their changing bodies, and easy targets for cyberbullying. Untreated depression whispers of suicide, while drugs offer a tempting escape. The system perpetuates this web, lacking resources and knowledge to break free.
